First, filing contracts on CD-ROM would be acceptable if the format of the information was in an 'easy to access and interpret' form. Only by being able to review the contracts as they were originally written & signed with ALL pages would they be beneficial in the PSC investigation.

Second, the purpose of this investigation is to determine whether CSAs have been fairly and equitably executed. This can not be accomplished properly with only a sample of the contracts. Even a truly random 10% sample would not necessarily be statistically representative of the whole. Furthermore, the issue is not even concerning the 'average' contract, it is rather, the disparity between the high and low ends of the range.
